It's common in films to use elements from dreams as a motif, as a type of artistic expression. However, there are a few problems with this interpretation. The first is the timing. We know about the murder, so this must have happened some time after it. Even so, how could Bill have just had this movie in his head for several years, waiting for this specific moment? There is no good answer. The second problem is the probability of it happening. As this is 2019, let's assume we're a few years into a technological future where we have full magic. Not only that, but we have magic that allows us to make dreams. This magic isn't just readily available, but it's used on a regular basis. This means that it's likely that someone in the audience would have enough power to be able to cause this dream to happen. The audience knows there's
